For over 124 years, the National Geographic Magazine visited Madeira publishing several articles on human and environmental heritage of the Islands. Subjects like Pilot whales, the Laurel forest, the Selvagens and people and customs of Madeira were the subject of photographic reports promoting the island globally and called attention to the best that we have locally.

This exhibition is part of a wider project which aims to present the views of photographers from all over the world, who professionally visited Madeira and there captured images that present us with a reality that we, who live here, sometimes not grasped. Images that being familiar, present small and subtle disruptions of our visual memory.

OLHAES ESTRANGEIROS SOBRE A MADEIRA: OS FOTÓGRAFOS DA NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC is also part of the project CENTRO DAS ARTES GLOBAL which aims to decentralize the cultural initiatives of Madeira, bringing them out of Funchal and revitalizing cultural spaces and equipment of the rural world.
